

It is rare that you come across someone like Andrew who not only is an expert in his field, but who also treats clients with extraordinary professionalism, and values straight-forward communication. I have had the pleasure of working with Andrew as a client of AccessData for over two years now. No matter how large or small the issue my organization may be facing, Andrew was sure to pay every attention to detail and explain the how's and why's of the solution. I appreciate his willingness to truly work to understand what our organization is trying to achieve and his ability to educate the end-user effectively. Andrew is extremely pro-active in providing the best guidance, support and instruction which I have personally found makes me more efficient at my job and increasingly adds value to our organization as a whole. Andrew has gone above and beyond in countless circumstances to not only fix immediate issues, but to work with my Information Technology Teams to best maintain a healthy environment for our databases. And the guy has a great sense of humor too... always ending each meeting, no matter how tense, with a laugh. I would highly recommend Andrew as a stellar member of any team. My organization is forever grateful for his contributions.
